York Regiment, now doing guard duty in this city, and the foraible release of the men, who were taken from the city lock-up by order of Col. Axtell, commander of the post. Owing to the conflicting statements in regard to the disturbance and arrest, we are unable to say exactly where the fault lies. Some of the spectators declare that there was no occasion for the interference of the police—that the soldiers were on their way to their quarters, and were not disaster. He had known each one Brues and a soldier belonging to the same regiment. In this case we understand the soldier was the assailant, the provocation being a remark made by Brues in regard to one of his conrades then under arrest. The combatants

ACCIDENTALIN KILLED. On last Friday night James Copeland, a painter of this city, was run over by a passenger train on the Central Ohio Railroad, and instantly killed. His body was horribly mutilated, and portions of the remains were scattered along the track for at least one mile. Copeland was a man of very intemperate habits, and it is supposed that he was intoxicated at the time of the accident, which occurred in the vicinity of Barnesville.
